PLSG Director Joins Pittsburgh Technology Council

Delvina Morrow New Director of Major Programs

PITTSBURGH, PA (December 27, 2018)— The Pittsburgh Life Sciences Greenhouse is pleased to announce that Delvina Morrow has accepted a position as Director of Major Programs for the Pittsburgh Technology Council. Delvina, who has served as the PLSG’s Director of Development and Community Engagement, has contributed her talents and helped to further Pittsburgh’s entrepreneurial community. In her new position she will be able to make a larger impact to the region. “Although Delvina will be missed,” said Jim Jordan, President and CEO of the PLSG, “it’s the Greenhouse’s mission to develop and promote talent for the greater good of our Region.”

Part of Delvina’s role has been to develop and lead the PLSG’s Health IT Pittsburgh Initiative. To allow the Initiative to benefit from her continued input, Delvina will become a Health IT Pittsburgh advisory board member. Since Diana Cugliari has been involved with the Initiative since its inception, she will be PLSG’s point person for the Initiative.

The PLSG wishes Delvina continued success in her new position, which begins January 7, 2019.
